

Jacopo Berengario, "Isagogae Breves," 1522; The "uterus and attached vessels resemble male genitalia." From Thomas Laqueur, Making Sex: Body and Gender from the Greeks to Freud, 1990, fig. 17.

Jacopo Berengario, "Isagogae Breves," 1522; "[Y]ou see how the neck of the womb resembles the penis."
From Thomas Laqueur, Making Sex: Body and Gender from the Greeks to Freud, 1990, fig. 16.

Vesalius, "Tabulae Sex," 1538; male and female organs demonstrating correspondence. From Thomas Laqueur, Making Sex: Body and Gender from the Greeks to Freud, 1990, fig. 18.

Two anatomical drawings: vagina as penis from Vesalius, "Fabrica," and vagina and uterus from Vidus Vidius, "De anatome corporis humani," 1611 Citation: Andreas Vesalius, "De humani corporis fabrica," 1543; and Vidus Vidius, "De anatome corporis humani," 1611. From Thomas Laqueur, Making Sex: Body and Gender from the Greeks to Freud, 1990, figs. 20, 21.